Before you go, the instructors will advise you on the best (3) equipment (EQUIP) to take, and while on the safari, the guides will show you the best locations to 'shoot' animals. But it's important to remember that not all of the areas are (4) accessible (ACCESS) to tourists, and you also might need a lot of time and (5) patience (PATIENT) to see some of the rarer animals. But whatever you see, going on a trip like this can (6) significantly (SIGNIFY) improve your photography. And it's not just animals. A photo safari can also be a great opportunity to get to know some of the local people and experience (7) traditional (TRADITION) activities such as dancing or cooking. And if your photos are good enough, you may even be able to show them in an (8) exhibition (EXHIBIT) when you get home!
